9:00 - 10:30 Dawn Lawrence - Te Tiriti o Waitangi relationships and practice

Inclusion requires systems, structures, policies and practices to adapt to the needs and aspirations of the people they serve, and create spaces and places in which all groups and individuals feel safe, respected, visible, accepted and a sense of belonging.

The primacy of relationships and the potential to enact transformative change when collective aspirations are given life through collective action. Working in ways with educators and communities that positions diversity as strength and understands learning as a life-long, iterative process of 'becoming' not a predetermined destination.
